

Biography of Dr. Wright

Written by Chris Labod

Tuesday, 25 January 2011 19:34 - Last Updated Tuesday, 17 May 2011 12:16

Randall Wright, MD is first and foremost a family man, committed to his wife and two children and the larger community that revolves around his neighborhood, church, and hospital clinic. With a Bachelor of Science degree in Physics from Xavier University of Louisiana, a Bachelor of Electrical Engineering from Georgia Institute of Technology, a medical degree from Emory University School of Medicine, an internship at Louisiana State University, a residency at Baylor College of Medicine and a fellowship at their Department of Neurology. Dr. Wright currently serves as the Medical Director of two centers in Houston, the Conroe Regional Neurovascular Stroke Center and the Stroke Care Unit at Health South Rehabilitation Hospital in the Woodlands, Texas. He also serves as the Director of Medical Subspecialties and Staff Neurologist at the Sadler Clinic.

Dr. Wright has won the Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) Frist Humanitarian award for 2011 at Conroe Hospital for his volunteer efforts in his community in regard to spreading the life saving message of healthy lifestyle change, and for bringing state of the art stroke care to a community hospital. Dr. Wright has established himself on the national stage through his continued work with the American Heart Association, first being named to their State Advocacy Committee in 2006, followed by his representing Texas at the national kick off of Power to End Stroke Campaign. Dr. Wright was named a AHA Legacy Award winner in 2008. Through the AHA, he partnered with Gospel recording artist Kirk Franklin in 2009 to present the message the city of Houston. He appeared on the Local television talk show Great Day Houston and spoke about the signs and symptoms of stroke. That same year, Dr. Wright was recognized nationally by the American Heart Association as an outstanding member of the South central affiliate. This award was presented at the national Power to End Stroke Gala in Atlanta, Ga. In April 2010, Dr Wright was once again featured on the Great Day Houston show to continue spreading the message of stroke prevention.

More recently, in 2011, he was asked to serve as Chairman of the Stroke Committee for the American Heart Association South Western affiliate. In this role, Dr. Wright leads the fight against stroke across 6 states, by setting the AHA priorities in regards to stroke care for hospital, stroke legislation, and developing protocols for the stroke chain of survival in those states.

Biography of Dr. Wright

Written by Chris Labod

Tuesday, 25 January 2011 19:34 - Last Updated Tuesday, 17 May 2011 12:16

In Houston, Dr. Wright currently serves as Chairman of the Montgomery County American Heart Association, volunteers for the Speakers Bureau of the Houston Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, and was a participant in the Leadership Houston Program.

In 2006, Dr. Wright was selected as an American Academy of Neurology Palatucci Advocate. He has served as the Chief Resident of the Department of Neurology at Baylor College of Medicine, been selected as a Galaxco-Smith-Kline Epilepsy and Electrophysiology Scholar, received an Ortho-McNeil TOP Scholar award, as well as the Baylor College of Medicine House Officer Teaching Excellence Award for the Department of Neurology.

Dr. Wright plays golf, enjoys jogging with his children, is an aspiring cook, and says, "I live my life according to Philippians 4:13.